TALMADGE BILLS READY FOR HOPPER

Attaches of 2 Houses Designated as Governor's Forces Complete Plans.

With a large majority of members of both the senate and the house of representatives on hand, plans were completed Friday for the introduction of Governor Talmadge's administration measures in the legislature when it convenes Monday morning, and attaches of the two houses were designated by officials.

The Talmadge measures will be presented to their respective branches by Speaker E. D. Rivers, of the house, and President-designate Charles D. Redwine, of the senate.

The measures follow:

1. Ratification of the order cutting license fees to $3 for all motor vehicles, and fixing this rate for the future.
2. Division of $2,000,000 in highway funds to help common schools and Confederate veterans.
3. Creation of the office of lieutenant governor of Georgia.
4. A four-year term, instead of the present two years, for the governor, and other state officers, now having two-year terms.
5. Legislation to divert other funds to the present state floating debt which, including that to schools and pensioners, exceeds $4,000,000.
6. Governor Talmadge also has given his approval to the establishment of a radio-equipped state highway police system and Friday told Representative David Ansley, of DeKalb county, that he favored incorporation of a fingerprinting division in that system. Ansley will sponsor the measure.

The same attaches who served the house in 1933 and a number of those on duty in the senate are expected back Monday in their old posts.

The Rev. W. W. Harvey, of Thomasville, will be chaplain of the house, and the Rev. J. W. G. Watkins, of College Park, the chaplain of the senate. Both served during the 1933 session. Mr. Watkins has been chaplain of the house for years.

Mrs. J. W. Johnson, of Center Hill, will be postmaster of the house, and as such will have charge of the mail of members for both houses. Mrs. Antoinette Duncan, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Eloise Hodges, of Hartwell, are to be assistant postmasters for the senate.

Mrs. H. M. Tynes, of Carrollton, a sister of Governor Talmadge, and Mrs. E. B. Dykes, of Vienna, wife of a former president of the state senate, will direct the stenographic bureaus of the assembly. Various state departments will furnish 24 expert stenographers and two proof readers to assist the members in their correspondence. The service had the same directors last year.

Nevadan Is Held As Nelson Informer

RENO, Nev., Jan. 11.—(P)—Frank A. Cochran, 50, aviator and repair shop operator, was held today in the net spread by department of justice agents for a dozen or so residents of the west accused of aiding the late George "Baby Face" Nelson in his long flight from the law.

The fifth westerner to be arrested in connection with the maneuvers of the gangster through Montana, Nevada and California before his death at the hands of federal agents at Chicago, Cochran was taken into custody last night.

District Attorney E. P. Carville said a formal complaint would accuse Cochran of conspiring with "Baby Face" Nelson, of San Francisco, and John Paul Chase, now in custody in Chicago, to harbor Nelson during his frequent visits to Reno.

Carville said Cochran is charged with aiding Nelson's escape from Nevada and his flight to California, and Nelson's wife early in October that federal agents were in Reno. The prosecutor said Cochran motored out on a highway south of Reno to intercept the gang.

Planning Board Finds Too Much Land in Crops

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(P)—Faced by the prospect of declining population after 1960, the national resources board today advocated a "play safe" farming program which would not bring drastic reduction in continued unemployment.

The land planning committee of the board, which, under Secretary Ickes, recently drew up a vast work plan, today estimated that if the birth rate continued to diminish and immigration did not increase, population would reach a peak of 144,000,000 in 1960.

It advocated a $675,000,000 program to remove unproductive land from use during the next 15 years, along with utilization of better acreage now in woods or pastures. The board insisted, however, that agricultural policy depended on industrial recovery.

If the national economy is no ordered "that all of our human resources could be fully employed in providing for the extensive wastes still unsatisfied," the board committee advocated intensive farming. This it said, probably would make it possible to reduce the farming population one-third or one-half.

F.D.R. TO ASK CURB ON HOLDING FIRMS

Roosevelt's Power Body Drafts Bill To Prevent Pyramiding.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(P)—Authoritative indications that congress will be asked for stiff regulation of holding companies, barring many rate-increasing practices, today dominated a series of developments in the public utilities field.

President Roosevelt's power body committee drafted a bill to forbid holding companies from pyramiding of holding companies, the assessment of such concerns of management fees from operating companies, inflationary practices, and the assessment of management fees from operating companies to increase returns on stocks.

The president received from the power commission a report that holding companies are pyramiding of holding companies, the assessment of such concerns of management fees from operating companies, inflationary practices, and the assessment of management fees from operating companies to increase returns on stocks.

Chairman Rayburn of the house commerce committee, said in a speech on the floor that congress should regulate abuses by holding companies.

"We want you to consider," Rayburn said, "whether or not the congress should undertake to regulate these super-holding companies or lay down the law under which they will disappear."

Rayburn declined later to say whether the legislation to be recommended to President Roosevelt for approval before submission to congress would regulate or lay down a complete ban against holding companies.

From other sources, however, word came that while both courses had been proposed to the power policy committee, the latter would regulate what were styled abuses more strongly urged.

"More are in favor of regulating than abolishing," this official said.

The report of the policy committee will be taken to the president soon, probably in an unwritten, highly informal form. The committee was set up by the president recently to study power and utility matters from a national standpoint and to act as a clearing committee to pass upon legislation.

The report of the power commission to the president, in brief, indicated that the utility investments of standard life insurance companies and savings banks are and have always been almost exclusively in the bonds of operating companies.

Of six large New York life insurance companies, only 5.4 per cent of their assets are in public utility bonds and less than 1 per cent in utility preferred stocks.

Fifteen insurance concerns in other states own 10.5 per cent of their assets in utility bonds and eight-tenths of 1 per cent in preferred stocks.

"These 21 companies combined have total assets of $18,380,000,000, representing 79 per cent of the admitted assets of all life insurance companies in the United States."

Less than 3 per cent of the assets of savings banks are invested in utility bonds and their investments in utility stocks are negligible.

The market value of the utility bond holdings of the 51 standard life insurance companies was estimated at $100,441,000 more than it would have been in September, 1929, before the market crash.

The price trend of the 88 utility bond issues for which quotations are available back to 1929 reflected a rise from a low of 76.38 in May, 1929, to 110.52 in December, 1934.

"Every one of the 206 utility bonds for which comparable quotations are available increased in price during the past 12 months."

"Thirteen out of the 16 utility preferred stocks also showed a gain."

My Cookery News Notes

By RUTH CHAMBERS

Miller's Note: "Cookery News Notes" is a new feature of this newspaper, and will be followed with interest by our women readers. The writer is Ruth Chambers, staff member of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, recognized authority on all kinds of meat cooking and the planning of menus. This series of articles will give our readers the new information in helpful form, and will also give a series of excellent recipes and suggestions for serving the best course of the meal.

FRENCH-FRIED LIVER AND ONIONS.
French-fried potatoes are an old story—so, for that matter, the liver and onions—both French-fried liver and onions are new. At least it was to me and so I hastened to pass the word along to you, for I am sure you will like this way of preparing these per vial favorites.

Remove the membrane from liver and cut in one-inch cubes. Salt, roll in eggs and crumbs and fry in deep fat at 350 degrees Fahrenheit, until well browned. Serve with French-fried onions, which may be cooked in the same lard after the liver is finished. Drain, place the liver on unglazed paper, and keep in a warm place, while the onions are being fried.

French-Fried Onions.
Six medium-sized onions, 1 cup flour, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1-4 teaspoon salt, lard.

Peel the onions, slice in 1-8 inch slices and separate into rings. Make a batter of the flour, milk, egg, and salt. Dip the onion rings in the batter. Heat the lard to 360 degrees Fahrenheit. Place the onions in a frying basket, lower into the hot lard and fry until medium brown. Drain thoroughly. Arrange on platter around the liver and serve hot.

French-fried onions will remain crisp and may be reheated and used another day.

And from Madam Beque's famous old restaurant in New Orleans comes another recipe for French-fried liver.

Liver a la Madam Beque.
Remove membrane from liver and cut into 1 and 1-2 inch cubes. Marinate for 30 minutes or longer in a well-seasoned French dressing, using twice as much oil as vinegar. Fry in deep fat at 350 degrees Fahrenheit, until well browned. Serve piled on a platter and garnished with parsley and lemon.

And while we are on the subject of deep-fat frying, a word about lard will not be amiss. Perhaps every woman does not know that lard, with its low cost and high digestibility, is a very desirable medium for deep fat frying. One of the reasons it is an excellent fat for this use, is because it can be heated without burning, to temperatures high enough to cook all the foods we fry in deep fat. In this process of heating there is no undesirable change in the lard's flavor or odor, and with the proper care, lard can be used over and over, so you see.

Care of Lard.
Lard should be kept, both before and after frying, in a cool place in a tightly covered container. It may be left in the waxed container in which it is purchased, or a wooden pail or crockery jar with a tight-fitting lid is excellent.

Before being stored, lard which has been used for deep-fat frying should be strained through one or more thicknesses of cloth to remove any particles of food, crumbs, or other food. The more of these particles left in the fat, the lower the temperature at which it will smoke when reheated. Besides straining, it may be necessary to clarify the fat after some strong flavored food, such as onions, has been fried. This is done by slicing potatoes in the fat while it is hot, and then straining it as described.

'Kansas City Princess'Now Playing Georgia

Love tangles and marital mixups form the ingredients of the hilarious situations in Joan Blondell's latest picture, The Kansas City Princess, which opens at the Georgia theater today.

The story, by Sy Bartlett and Maud Self, chiefly concerns the love episodes and mad adventures of two mid-western maniacs, although a gangster, a millionaire playboy, his wife and her lover and two small-town aldermen and their wives are all mixed up in the potpourri of laughter.

In a swift series of kaleidoscopic incidents the picture takes the spectator from Kansas City to New York by train and airplane, aboard a French liner on which riotous scenes occur with the two maniacs chafing their way across, and then to Paris, where the smashing climax comes with the wildest love mixup and a whirlwind of laughter.

Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell have the roles of the two gold-digging maniacs with Hugh Herbert as the somewhat dumb millionaire; Robert Armstrong as the gangster, who is chasing his maniacally rich wife; and Hugh Cavanaugh and T. Roy Barnes as the small-town aldermen.

Others in the cast include Osgood Perkins, a double-crossing Parisian detective; Gordon Westcott, who steals both hearts and diamonds; the picture, which is rated as one of the most screamingly funny of the new year, was directed by William Keighley.

Buster Keaton, who has been hiding out for quite a long time, makes his 1935 debut on the Georgia screen in his latest comedy, Palooka From Paducah. A cartoon titled "The First Show" and Paramount News complete the program.

NEU TO GET HEARINGON SENTENCE CHANGE

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 11.—(P)—Assistant Attorney General James O'Connor announced today that the state board of pardons on January 17 would consider Kenneth Neu's application for commutation of his death sentence to life imprisonment.

Neu was convicted of murdering Sheffield Clark, a business executive, of Nashville, Tenn., while Clark was a visitor at the Orleans hotel. Clark was robbed of a small sum of money and his automobile.

Governor O. K. Allen had set February 1 as the date for Neu's execution. Neu's counsel announced that Governor Allen would be requested to appoint a lunacy commission to examine the condemned man.

Neu is from Savannah, Ga.

Georgia Solons Show Exhibit Of Screw Worm DevastationState Official in Washington To Aid in Fight for Funds To Combat Livestock Menace.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Members of the Georgia delegation in congress today were presented with a graphic picture of the devastation wrought to live stock of the state by ravages of the screw worm.

Armed with a series of some 50 exhibits, State Entomologist M. S. Yeomans, Atlanta, came to Washington to aid in the fight for obtaining congressional appropriations to combat the menace.

Summoning the state delegation to his hotel suite, he gave an illustrated lecture on the inroads caused by the pest.

Later he conferred with officials of the department of agriculture and other government agencies which are co-operating in the campaign of eradication.

Already a number of bills have been introduced in both houses of congress by members of the Georgia group asking that a fund of $200,000 to $300,000 be immediately granted for carrying on the campaign. Both Senator Walter F. George and Senator Richard B. Russell, Jr., are demanding action in the upper chamber, while

East Point Mayor, Ired at Council, Sets Up Suburban 'Dictatorship'

Incensed with his council because it "fired" four veteran city employees and reduced salaries, Mayor Howard L. Carmichael is "going to run East Point" himself, he asserted Friday night.

The mayor is going to act as finance committee, street committee, sanitary committee, light and water committee, and in fact all the usual council committees, all by himself.

He said he was going to administer the business affairs of the city of East Point "until such time as council should change it."

He was to have appointed members of the committees Tuesday night at the reorganization meeting of council, but when the councilmen dispersed City Clerk T. W. Fowler, Superintendent of Lights and Water C. E. Hutchison, City Attorney Standish Thompson and Meter Reader J. I. O'Neal, he tore up the lists he had prepared and announced he would assume control of all city business personally.

"If the decisive tactics of a Governor Talmadge or a Huey Long are needed to run this city, I will employ them," said the mayor. "Maybe

1,000,000 More Jobs Seen in Spring Trade

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(P)—The American Federation of Labor today predicted an expected spring business upswing would give work to only one million of the 11,459,000 it finds are jobless.

The only other immediately visible hope for reducing the size of the army of unemployed, the federation said, is through President Roosevelt's plan to adopt a 30-hour week through out industry.

While the federation did not estimate what effect Mr. Roosevelt's project would have on private business and industry, the president recently estimated it would give jobs to 7,000,000.

Work for another 4,000,000, the federation estimated, would result from adoption of a 30-hour week through out industry.

HUGE DOCKET SWAMPS FULTON GRAND JURORS

Nearly Fifty Indictments
Returned in Single Day
by Jury.

Swamped with the largest volume of business confronting it in several years, Fulton county grand jury in an all-day session Friday returned nearly 50 indictments, most of them dealing with automobile thefts, robberies and burglaries.

Two indictments were returned against George Henry and James Morgan, alleged yeggmen who hold long records in other states and who were arrested last week when police found them with an elaborate assortment of burglar's equipment. The men are charged with the burglary of the storehouses of A. L. Quinn and Sol Cohen, where officers allege acetylene tanks, hose and other equipment was stolen. In another bill they are charged with possessing burglar's tools.

Four negroes, alleged members of a band of automobile thieves who have been dismantling stolen cars and selling the parts to junk dealers were named in an automobile theft bill charging larceny of 11 different cars. Ernest L. Sims, Duvner Mayfield, M. C. Williams and Fred Hightower, all of whom have been arrested in connection with the investigation, are held in default of $5,000 bonds.

Robbery indictments were returned against Charlie Rawson, Eddie Jackson and Rufus Johnson, negroes, charging them with the $1,350 holdup robbery of Woodrow Terrell, Angier Drug Company employee, December 17. Thomas Higgins was named in a bill charging him with the holdup robbery of G. C. Wilson, January 4, in which $65 was taken.

While the grand jury was in session all divisions of criminal court were humming in disposing of cases of a similar nature, which have caused the largest docket in years, according to court attaches.

W. W. Wise, white youth, was found guilty by a jury of the burglary of King Dobbie & Co. last June 3, in which $6,918 worth of cigars and a truck were stolen. Wise was sentenced to serve 12 to 20 years by Judge Howard. J. P. Spain and Guy Raines, named in the same indictment with Wise, pleaded guilty in October and received two-to-five-year sentences. Wise is also indicted for another large-scale robbery of the Tennessee Egg Company, in which a truck and eggs valued at $1,142 were taken.

Early Start Promised On Peters St. Viaduct

Immediate start on reconstruction of the Peters street viaduct at an aggregate cost of about $300,000 was promised city officials Friday by E. N. Seymour, office engineer of the Georgia state highway department. In a letter to Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction, Seymour asserted the state is ready to proceed at once with the project and added that the Northeastern Construction Company, successful bidder, has been ordered to proceed.

The 1935 city budget carries $40,000 for extension of Whitehall street from its present terminus at Gordon street to McCull's crossing and into Lee street. This allocation was a condition imposed by the state highway department in rebuilding the Peters street bridge. Money for the work was furnished by the federal government for public improvements. Georgia got $10,000,000. The Peters street improvement is the first of the fund allocated and expended in Atlanta.

DEKALB DELEGATION AGAINST MERGER PLAN

Opposition to the proposed merger of the governments of Fulton and DeKalb counties will be voiced in the general assembly by the members of the DeKalb county delegation. Governor Eugene Talmadge was told Friday by DeKalb Representative David Ansley.

The legislators of DeKalb do not favor consolidating their county, which is one of the largest and most prosperous in the state, with that of Fulton, Ansley said. But he asserted his delegation would not oppose merging the governments of Atlanta and Fulton county so long as no part of DeKalb is involved. A number of residents of Atlanta reside in DeKalb. The delegation will fight any move to consolidate DeKalb Atlanta with Fulton, he said.

Ansley Friday tendered his resignation as justice of the peace to Governor Talmadge so that he may devote more time to his duties as representative in the house.

REMOVAL OF CAPITAL IS NOT SEEN AS ISSUE

Removal of the capital is not expected to be an issue in the forthcoming session of the legislature. Governor Talmadge made known Friday in a letter to S. E. Cohen, mayor of Joseph, sent in response to Joseph's bid for consideration for the relocation of the capital if the issue becomes a major one in the general assembly.

Representative Seymour I. Deer, of Newman, announced that he would introduce a resolution taking the capital to Macon and would support it vigorously, he said.

NEW GAVEL PRESENTED COUNCIL FINANCE HEAD

Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of the 1935 finance committee of council, Friday had a new gavel and one to his liking.

Several days ago he complained that the heavy council gavel, which has been used for many decades by chairman of the finance committee in a vain attempt to keep some semblance of decorum in finance committee sessions, was too heavy.

Friday L. Glenn Dewberry, superintendent of the city hall, presented him with a lighter oak gavel inscribed and equipped with a metal band. It will be as effective as the larger old one—neither will keep order in the 13-man finance committee.

WOODWARD RAPS NAVY COMMUNISTS

QUANTICO, Va., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward asserted tonight that an organized attempt was being made by "first class brains" to spread communism in the navy. He called on marine officers to combat "that vicious and alien enemy which strikes at the root of order and authority."

Speaking before the officers' mess, at marine barracks here, Woodward said the house committee investigating un-American activities had revealed that the country was "honeycombed" with thousands of communist organizations.

Woodward referred to "radical and pacifist publications" as publishing communist articles and having "a general outlook" with the communist party. These, he said, "strike at national defense in the guise of patriotism," while "certain religious publications, either deliberately or unwittingly, advocate communistic methods in their anti-preparedness and anti-war fights."

Woodward attacked "radical activities" in colleges with army or navy R. O. T. C. units, singling out the National Students' League because of its "strong and militant opposition to national preparedness in every form."

"These 'college reds,'" Woodward said, "should be punished as they deserve—summarily expelled, and deprived of citizenship, or if foreigners, deported at once."

Communist activities in the navy, he said, began in 1930 and are now "exceedingly well organized with trained agitators doing their work, constantly following ship movements from port to port."

Woodward referred to testimony before the house committee that women radicals sought to convert sailors to communism, and added that similar methods were in use among civilian personnel and employees of government contractors.

He said communistic leaflets distributed to navy personnel, both in the United States and in foreign ports, apparently came from a central headquarters in this country. It had been reported to him, he said, that selected men were trained at communist workers schools for entry into the armed services.

Woodward said that the navy was "a target of bitter fighting" in the northwest Chaco tonight. Left Paraguay's and Bolivia's biggest armies, estimated to total 50,000 to 60,000 men, apparently in another of their periodic deadlocks.

Dispatches from the warring nations indicated the stout Bolivian defenses protecting Villa Montes, major army base, and Bolivia's oil fields had stopped the advance of General Jose Estigarribia's veteran Paraguayans.

Dispatches from La Paz said unofficial advice from the front was that Paraguayans were attacking in mass in all sectors along the 60-mile front, to which the Chaco field of operations has been narrowed.

Dispatches from the front said that six naval sea planes made their notable "precision flight" from San Francisco bay to Pearl Harbor, Honolulu.

Several times the great war pause between the California mainland and Hawaii has been spanned by planes but Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith and Captain P. G. Taylor, flying in their famous Lady Southern Cross, are the only ones to have flown from the islands to the mainland. They made this trip last November.

Ten persons have lost their lives attempting to negotiate the 2,400-mile all-water route by flying westward. Miss Earhart rested well before starting. She arrived at the field in an automobile driven by Lieutenant George H. Spanghawk, at whose home she had spent the night.

She gave her plane a careful examination and then climbed aboard. She flashed a smile to the crowd and waved. Then she reached down to shake hands with friends and said farewell to her husband.

Putnam stuck his head inside the cabin so spectators could not see their farewells.

Miss Earhart wore a brown, fur-lined flying suit. Close within reach was a collapsible lifebelt with compressed air cartridges to inflate it quickly in an emergency.

Equipment, permitting two-way voice communication with distant points, had been tested and found effective.

"Rather Have a Baby," she turned her plane to the northeast and gave the motor "the gun."

Roaring down the runway and spattering mud that collected on the red fuselage of the plane, she soon overcame the obstacles of a heavy field and a heavy load and was blithely on her way.

Perspiring, he said: "I'd rather have a baby."

Asked if America took other precautionary equipment besides life belts and lift belt, he shrugged his shoulders and replied:

"What else could she take?"

Mary Pickford Denies Romance With Rogers

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Reports of a romance in the life of Mary Pickford, "America's Sweetheart" of the screen, were denied tonight as she remained in seclusion after obtaining a divorce from Douglas Fairbanks.

Hardly had the 15-year marriage of Hollywood's most noted couple been dissolved when rumors cropped out again linking her name romantically with that of Buddy Rogers, 25-year-old actor-orchestra leader, now in London.

In the reported absence of Miss Pickford from the city, her personal representative refuted the talk of such a romance.

"Miss Pickford and Rogers are just good friends," the representative said. "She has known Rogers and his family many years, but there certainly is no possibility of a romance between the two."

Policemen Disciplined in City Jail Escape

Five Atlanta police officers and matrons Friday night were disciplined as a result of the escape Sunday night of Ralph Jones, Illinois life-terminer, from the city jail. In the above picture are: Mrs. Mary Buckley, left, who figured prominently in the hearings and who was a friend of Mrs. Jones, billed at the station as Ellen Brown, right, who also was a witness. Lieutenant W. M. (Buck) Weaver, center, was suspended 29 days by order of the committee for failing to carry out orders of Chief T. O. Sturdivant to keep Mrs. Jones in isolation. of them was dealt with by the committee.

Prisoner Testifies. Although officials of the jail knew nothing of the smooth-working preparation for and details of the escape, prisoners "figured Jones was getting ready to leave," according to testimony given in the committee hearing.

When Burden saw Jones leaving he related that the following conversation took place:

"I didn't tell anybody about it," Burden said, "because it wasn't any of my business. I knew he was gone, though. It was about 8 or 3:30 in the morning."

Jones' Wife Testifies. Jones' wife, looked at the station as Mrs. Ellen Brown, a comely brunette with flashing blue eyes, and who was arrested with Jones in Covington and was held at the Atlanta jail for safekeeping in connection with the warehouse robbery, was one of the principal witnesses.

She defended the Atlanta officers and police matrons who were under fire, and asserted she had nothing to do with Jones' escape.

"I didn't know he was going to get out," she asserted. "I didn't want him to go away and leave me here."

Mrs. Mary Buckley, Mrs. Jones' friend, also was grilled by the committee and Chief Sturdivant. She brought magazines to Mrs. Jones, gave her a manicure and hair dressing, and caused new dresses to be brought into the prison for her. Mrs. Buckley denied she knew anything of the escape plans.

Two Patrolmen Reinstated. Y. F. Geesling and M. P. Warren, patrolmen, fired several months ago for being under the influence of liquor, were reinstated by the committee, but the action was followed by a statement by Bridges and backed by others that the bars are not down.

"We just think we possibly were too hasty in our action in these two cases, and want the public and the department to know that we will not tolerate drinking," committee members said.

Friday night was the first time the committee has weakened in the cases of more than one of the men they have fired for liquor.

Liquor Found in Room. During the Adair hearing, Bridges charged he had found a quantity of liquor in a bottle in the turnkey's cloak room, and asked Adair if he knew who did the drinking up there. Adair denied knowledge of the liquor.

The committee told Pendley to use his judgment in revamping operating rules at the station, and to make them "as tight as possible." He will begin his work at once.

STRIKE PRISONER ASKS WRIT DENIAL

national guard, who is in charge of the national guard sent to Rossville by Governor Eugene Talmadge to preserve peace during a strike there.

Earlier Friday Governor Talmadge said he refused to accept service of a subpoena calling him as a witness in the case, General Camp was named defendant in the action.

Asked for comment Friday night on the prisoner's statement and letter, Governor Talmadge said:

"I suggest you go out to the camp and talk to this man, and find out for yourself what he has to say. Ask him if the statement was made voluntarily, and without any threats or promises being made to get him to make it."

In the military prison, where 32 other men arrested in the Rossville area are being held, Williams said that he had made the statement and written the letter.

Williams pointed out that Williams said the only man he had known for any length of time in the prison here was a youth who said his home was in Alton Park, Tenn.

The youth said he had known Williams for four years or more, and pointed him out. General Camp and other guard officers also said the man was Williams.

Asked if he had been threatened or intimidated to persuade him to make the statement and write the letter, Williams laughed and shook his head in the negative.

"Any promises, abuse or anything else used to get you to make it?" he was asked.

"No. It was done willingly." The letter addressed to Judge Underwood said:

"You are requested to dismiss any writ in my name. I did not authorize it and desire that it be stopped. Respectfully, Charles Williams, national guard camp, Jan. 11, 1935."

Says Move Unauthorized. The statement, addressed to whom it may concern, said:

"I noticed in a newspaper that a writ of some kind had been brought in my name to release me from custody of the Georgia national guard. I did not authorize Mr. Jack Savage to bring any petition for me."

"I did not authorize Mr. Steve Nance to make any affidavit in my behalf. I do not authorize them at this time to bring any petition for me or make any affidavit for me at this time."

"They have no authority to represent me in any manner and I made no effort to secure my release. I am being well taken care of and am at last to know why these gentlemen should interest themselves in my behalf, and as far as I am concerned they can forget me. I am not a textile worker, never have been and never expect to be."

"I am making this as a voluntary statement."

"Of course I am anxious to be released and returned to my home. I expect to receive my release through the natural course of events and in the future Mr. Nance and Mr. Savage can proceed in their way and I will proceed in mine. Respectfully,

"CHARLES WILLIAMS, 'National Guard Prisoner.' Lives in Chattanooga."

The man said he was a paperhanger and painter and lived in Chattanooga. The petition for a writ of habeas corpus said that Williams was not charged with any offense against military laws of Georgia or the United States, that he was being detained illegally and that martial law has never been proclaimed in Georgia because the governor did not designate officially the areas under such control.

Savage, advised of Williams' action, said he was representing the man as an attorney for the Georgia Federation of Labor. He and Nance both asserted they knew nothing of the man except that he was a member of the union and that a union representative had wired Nance to act also for 18 others.

Governor Talmadge declined to say whether he would appear in court tomorrow. The United States marshal's office here said the subpoena had been listed as "served."

The tentative budget is $613,000 short of the amount needed to set salaries at their former level.

KEY TO ASK FULTON TO AID HOSPITAL

County's Co-operation on 50-50 Basis Sought by Mayor, Budget Board.

Backed by the budget commission and the finance committee of city council, Mayor James L. Key will present his plan for a 50-50 operation of Grady hospital, Battle Hill sanitarium and two other municipal hospitals to the Fulton county commission in an effort to prevent city salary cuts larger than 10 per cent for 1935.

The finance committee Friday afternoon, after a four-hour study of fiscal problems facing the city, designated Alderman J. Sid Tiller, third ward; Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of the 1935 city finance committee; and B. Graham West, city comptroller, as a committee to aid Key in presentation of the matter.

Key Friday morning amended his suggestion that the county take over all the expense of hospital operation in Atlanta and Fulton county and indicated that the city would be willing to share the expense on a 50-50 basis.

If this were done, the county would contribute $335,000 this year to the operation and maintenance of the institutions and salary cuts for 1,900 non-school city employees would remain virtually as they are now—a cut of 10 per cent in basic salaries.

Fulton Heads Noncommittal. Fulton county commissioners generally were noncommittal about the proposal.

George F. Longino, chairman of the finance committee of the commission, asserted that the county did not have a surplus of funds as has been thought. He contended that rigid economy should be practiced in county operation; that the county does not have funds to make any large contributions or expenditures for any purpose.

He also said that the proposed $100,000 increase in Fulton county pay rolls for 1935 can not be made safely. While he subscribed to an adjustment of salaries for employees in the lower brackets, he charged that the proposed increases were mapped at a caucus of Fulton county commissioners from which he and Commissioner J. A. Ragdale were excluded.

Edwin F. Johnson, regarded as a leader of a majority faction of the commission, refused to comment on the proposed division of expense in hospital operation prior to a conference with Key and others.

Ragdale declined to comment. Dr. Charles Ross Adams, chairman of the commission, said he had not read the papers and was not familiar with the matter, and Ed L. Almond, fifth commissioner, was ill at his home.

Key Amends Proposal. The budget commission Thursday afternoon recommended that the county bear the total $671,000 expense of hospital operation, but Key amended his proposal Friday morning.

He decided that half of the amount would keep city employees' salaries at the same figure they are now.

Finance committee members Friday night adjourned until 7 o'clock Monday night and will continue night meetings throughout the week until the 1935 sheet is ready for council action.

The tentative budget is $613,000 short of the amount needed to set salaries at their former level.

Surrounded by their six children, 13 grandchildren and one great-grandchild, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Coleman, of Loganville, Ga., parents of Alderman Guy Coleman, of the first ward, Friday night celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the home of another son, C. T. Coleman, at 758 Brookridge drive, N. E.

Married 50 years ago at Walnut Grove, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Coleman were the parents of six children, all of whom are alive and were present Friday night at the golden wedding anniversary party, as were all grand children. Mr. Coleman is 77 and his wife 73.

In addition to Alderman Coleman and C. T. Coleman, Waddell Coleman, and Robert Coleman, of Atlanta; Mrs. J. M. Wallis, of Conyers, and Henry Coleman, of Chicago, the sons and daughter of the couple, were present at the anniversary party.

Cop Finds Dynamite Stick In Innocent Lump of Coal Before Patrolman B. R. Hutcherson went to work Friday morning, he broke up several large lumps of coal at his home, 662 Peoples street.

Mrs. Hutcherson, later in the day, went to get some of the coal and found what she later learned was a stick of dynamite and a partly burned fuse, which Hutcherson said must have been in one of the large lumps of coal which he broke up.

Patrolman Hutcherson Friday night was making inquiries of his fellow officers regarding the habits of dynamite and was speculating how far he and members of his family and portions of his residence would have been blown had the dynamite not been discovered but had been tossed into the family stove. Estimates by fellow officers who visually weighed Patrolman Hutcherson varied from a distance of 100 yards to half a mile travel for the peace officer.

NEW JUDGESHIP RUNS INTO SNAG

State Delegation Divided and Cummings' Attitude Believed Rather Cool.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Conflicting views on the proposal for creating an additional federal judgeship in the northern district of Georgia will probably necessitate a caucus of the state congressional group before any concerted action can be taken on a bill.

Under a measure originally introduced at the last session and again presented by Representative Robert Hanes, of Atlanta, who proposed additional relief would be created solely to relieve congested court conditions in the northern district.

Should the bill be passed in that form the president in filling the office would be expected to adhere to the practice of confining his consideration of applicants to the district served.

Other members of the delegation, however, led by Representative Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, dean of the group, feel that the new jurist should be available for relief work in all three districts of the state—and by the same token throw the office open to candidates from all sections of the state.

Cummings May Oppose. Sentiment on the question seems to be pretty well divided. Those from the northern jurisdiction favoring the appointment confined to the northern district. Representatives from the middle and southern jurisdictions may be expected to come forward with an aspirant for the life-time post in the event it is created.

Meanwhile, it was revealed at the department of justice today that proponents of the bill are yet to overcome an important preliminary hurdle before the earlier recommendation of the committee.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings has not satisfied himself that an additional judgeship is needed in the district and rarely if ever is a new federal jurist created without the recommendation of the attorney general.

In his annual report recently filed with congress Mr. Cummings recommended only two new judgeships, one in California and another in New York, although his predecessor in office, former Attorney General Mitchell, certified the need for a second judge in the northern Georgia district. Reasons of the present department head "ignoring the earlier recommendation are that he wants to observe the fruits of prohibition repeal, waiting to see whether the reduction in the number of liquor cases will materially relieve congestion in court dockets generally. The fact the repeal has not yet been acted upon in Georgia, however, may be a factor.

George Unavailable. Incidentally, in connection with the published reports in Georgia that pressure might be exerted to have Senator W. T. George accept the judgeship, a solution to the suggested senatorial contest in 1936 between Governor Eugene Talmadge and Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., it was pointed out here today that he would not be eligible. There is an old statute on the books disqualifying members of congress from accepting appointments during the creation session of congress.

No member of the Georgia delegation, therefore, would be qualified to serve before the present congress expires. And, of course, the administration would hardly be expected to create the office and then wait until January, 1937, to fill it.

Moreover, while Senator George has often been mentioned for a place on the United States supreme court his colleagues here doubt that he would be agreeable to taking a lesser judicial post.

Georgia this session will be without representation on the judiciary committee, which has jurisdiction over all judgeship bills. Representative Malcolm C. Tarver, of Dalton, was a member last session but moved up this time to the more influential appropriations body.

WHAT WAS GONE BEFORE.

When Jean Sawyer is 17, her father, "Daddy," is sent to prison for six years for using funds of the Gotham bank where he was employed for further stock market margins. He had made money at first, using it to raise his family and educate his four children of whom Jean is the oldest and his favorite. She gets a job soliciting ads for the Gotham Times, studies art at night and her work attracts the attention of Emory Stewart, head of the dress department of The Iron Block. Gorham's big department store, owned by Spencer Cannon, the city's leading citizen. The day Edythe, Cannon's daughter, meets Mark Sturges, the new general manager, she has her father order Stewart to dismiss Jean Sawyer, the new girl who refers to Jean. When Mark learns that Jean's father is the cause, and Stewart says Jean is doing good work as artist and designer, he persuades her to remain just as her father is puzzled after serving over four years, for the first time for Sunday night supper. After her father leaves for church, she asks Mark why he doesn't like her and says, "I am going to make you like me a little." When she invites him later to meet the two Ridgeways and play contract, he says he does not play the game, but she insists Suzanne Ridgeway, an expert, will be glad to teach him. Mark proves an apt pupil. After several rubbers Suzanne seats Jean at her table and proceeds to monopolize him for the rest of the evening, much to her husband's disapproval. Jean meets XOXO GO ON WITH THE STORY.

IT'S like this... Still think there's a catch in this. This is an old copy by name of O'Brien over at headquarters. He acts as a sort of doorkeeper in the chief's office... Too much of a cripple to be good for anything else. I got him to talking one day and wormed what I thought was a good story out of him. It happened long before the days of gangsters, but a couple of their ancestors plugged Jerry full of holes when he tried to run 'em in. He got both of 'em with his gun before he was home. I tried my hand at writing it up in spare time, putting in a lot of color...

"And the paper printed it," Jean broke in, excitedly. "I was so proud."

"No, they didn't. I sent it over with a copy boy and never heard a word for two days. Then Parker called me in. I thought maybe the opposition had beat me to something and had my alibi all polished up... until I saw my story on his desk."

"What did he say about it?"

"Something that must have hurt. 'Oh, I was fair, fair, fair, but I'd never get anywhere. Why didn't I break into a better job and big money? I didn't know the answer. But you can bet he told me the O'Brien yarn was a good feature story... the kind he liked. Color and breeze... whatever that means. And would I like a crack at the rewrite desk?'"

"Don't! That's wonderful! What did you say?"

"Just what you think. So the next morning there was your old Uncle Don parked behind a typewriter. Old Parker was very decent, but he made a lot of shorts and gave me some pointers on style. That was last week. I was afraid to say anything for fear it would be just another flop. But last Saturday there were five strange trucks in the weekly insult. So..."

"I'm so glad."

"You know, Jean," Don resumed in a puzzled fashion, "it's made everything seem different. That story, for instance, Parker wants me to dig up a series on the cops. Of course, that's a move to get us in solid with the department. But I'll get my byline. Makes me wonder if I might make good, even though I'm not about it before. Sort of took it for granted I'd found my rut."

"Why, of course you'll make good, Don! This is just a start."

"Maybe, Jean..."

"There's only one thing that would make it worth while... You."

"Why, don't!" Jean faced him awfully. There was a hurt expression in her brown eyes.

"Why?" Don asked wistfully. "I've kept my trap shut, same as I promised. For a long time now. Wouldn't I ever have a chance? You can tell me that much, can't you?"

"Please," she begged. "Don't spoil things. You know I... I'm ever so fond of you, Don. But I have too many things to work out... before I can go romancing." Jean tried to smile at her last words. "And I do need you for a friend... same as you've always been. Promise me you will..."

"Sure, Jean. Didn't mean to miff things. Forget it. I'll be right there. Jean was more touched by his words than she might let him know. "Don," she explained gently. "I've got to make good now. So far, I've made just a small start. I want to get ahead, save money, go to art school. I have to plan on. Don't you see?"

"Right. I don't blame you. You're set for big times. I won't say anything more. But I can't help thinking things."

Poor old Don. His attempts at love-making always had been funny. Even in his serious moments, he reminded Jean of a small boy. She smiled a little sadly to herself before she turned out the living room lamp. After tonight, it would be a little different... the old carefree companion.

Everything changing these days.

"Has Don gone?"

Sawyer laid down his book and removed his spectacles as Jean came into the kitchen.

"Yes."

"Then I can have you a few minutes."

She allowed her father to draw her to a seat on his knee and rested her red-brown head contentedly against his shoulder.

"I like your friend Mr. Sturges, Bunkie."

"Do you?"

"He is a very fine chap. A gentleman in every sense of the word."

"I think he's... nice."

"Nice?" John Sawyer's hand reached for his daughter's ear. He pinched it gently. "You'd better trot up to bed now. I told Mother I would wait until twelve... provided she would come home in a taxi."

Jean made no reply. She sat motionless, staring at the lampshade in front of her.

A man's idea of a happy home is to have a room of his own where he can't hear the radio."

AUNT HET

Mark Sturges cherished a grateful and frequently recurring memory of that evening in the Sawyer home. It had satisfied a craving for genuine friendship he had secretly been aware of. So much so, that he found himself chafing anew at Edythe Cannon's possessive attitude.

Her father seemed more and more inclined, as time passed, to leave details of the store management in the hands of his new subordinate. While this circumstance brought a keen sense of antipathy to Sturges, he found himself in an increasingly uncomfortable position.

Invitations to Arden Terrace were frequent and difficult to decline; usually, there was no opportunity. Sometimes they took the guise of further contract lessons, but more often they were informal family gatherings of three, reduced to two as soon as the mellow chiming of the clock announced the hour of 10:30. Spencer Cannon's bed apparently vied with his church in its exacting demands.

When the card table was in evidence, however, the Ridgeways were noticeably absent. Suzanne had made good her promise of a dinner invitation, but, somewhat to Sturges' surprise, he proved the only guest. A matter which Edythe accepted as a personal affront, so frankly that Mark resolved again to reduce his social activities in Gorham to a new minimum.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

The Roman stories which we have had in the Corner have brought many letters from readers asking for "more." School classes have even drawn up petitions asking me to provide them with additional articles about the life and customs of the ancient Romans.

This widespread interest in people of long ago pleases me, for it is proof that boys and girls, as well as grown folk, like to learn "how things were" in olden times.

We shall, indeed, have more stories about the Romans. In the series I plan on the history of medicine and the story of costumes, there will be articles about the Romans.

This may be of help to pupils in history and Latin classes, but I have an idea that it will not be enough to satisfy their desires. For that reason I am working on a leaflet telling about the customs of ancient Rome. To have the title, "Rome and the Olden Romans."

Like other leaflets offered through the Corner, the Roman leaflet will be mailed without charge to those who send a stamped, return envelope. It will tell about Roman sports, schools, theaters, dress, slaves, wars, soldiers, roads and bridges. There will be several pictures in the leaflet, and these may be of special value to pupils making collections of ancient pictures for school or personal scrapbooks.

When you write for a leaflet at any time, there are rules which I should like to have you follow.

Prepare a return envelope. This should be an ordinary envelope, and you should write on it your full name, street address or rural route, the city or village, and the state or province.

Place a stamp on the return envelope. If the envelope seems too large to enclose, just fold it, and you will be able to place it inside.

When you write, address me in care of this newspaper. I ask you to be very careful about writing names and addresses, for I do not want any reader to be disappointed because a leaflet does not reach him safely.

Remember there will be some delay about the return of the leaflet. Even with their best efforts, my helpers seldom are able to send back a leaflet in less than a week, and sometimes it takes more than a week. There are thousands of letters to handle each month.

Miss Bivings and Mr. Loyless Wed At Fashionable Church Ceremony

MR. AND MRS. AUGUSTUS SHAW LOYLESS.

The vested choir, singing "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, heralded the approach of the bride party at the brilliant ceremony at which Miss Helen Randall Bivings, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Troy Bivings, became the bride of Augustus Shaw Loyless, only son of Dr. Donald A. Loyless, Friday evening at All Saints Episcopal church on Peachtree street.

The Rev. Dr. W. W. Memminger, rector of the church, read the marriage service, which assembled several hundred members of fashionable Atlanta society and united two of the city's most prominent families.

Joseph Ragan, organist of the church, rendered the nuptial music. His selections included: "Meditation a Sainte Clotilde," by Philip James; "Adoration," by Seth Binham; "Finale in D Minor," by H. A. Matthews; "Carillon," by Leo Sowerby; "The Evening Star," by Wagners; "Dress in the Evening," by Harriet Ware. During the ceremony he played "Liebestraum from Liszt. The vested choir music included: "The Voice," by Brethren Over Eden; by Gauntlett, and "O Perfect Love," by Barnby.

The traditional bride note of white was replaced by delicate tones of pink in the handsome floral decorations in the church, with tall pink tapers burning in the candelabra on the altar, and clusters of pink calla lilies and gladioli silhouetted majestically against the background of tropical foliage.

Palms were massed on either side of the altar, and festooning the chancel rail were garlands of smilax, caught at intervals with small clusters of pink flowers. The brass altar vases were filled with graceful pink calla lilies, and tall clusters of pink lilies and gladioli marked the pews reserved for the members of the bride's and bridegroom's families.

Acting as ushers were Henry L. de Givie, W. D. Thomson, Dr. Fred Hodgson, Dr. Steve Barnett, Willie Ballard, and Malcolm Fleming. Mrs. Troy Bivings Jr. served as matron of honor for her sister, and the bridesmaids included Misses Ann Wray Fleming, Edna Nevins, Anna Blake Morrison, Betty Timmons and Mrs. Hugh Carter Jr., all of Atlanta; Miss Mary Rhoda Montague of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Miss Jean MacFetridge, of Birmingham, Ala.

The attendants wore gowns fashioned alike of turquoise blue tulle with a pattern traced in a heavier thread and posed over shimmering slips of silver cloth. The necklines of the bodices, cut square in front and in a deep V in the back, were outlined in double-pleated fringe of the tulle, the fringe being repeated in the armholes to form brief sleeves. The graceful skirts were moulded to the figures to knee depth, where they ended in a wide, double-pleated fringe of the tulle, the fringe being repeated in the armholes to form brief sleeves. The graceful skirts were moulded to the figures to knee depth, where they ended in a wide, double-pleated fringe of the tulle, the fringe being repeated in the armholes to form brief sleeves.

The lovely young bride, one of the most beautiful and beloved members of Atlanta society, entered the church with her father, Dr. W. Troy Bivings, by whom she was given in marriage.

Brunet in coloring, slender and graceful, the bride presented a ravishing picture in her wedding gown of soft, white tulle fashioned over lustrous, shimmering slips of silver cloth. The bodice, cut high in the back and square in the front, was outlined with a two-inch pleated tulle fringe which framed the bride's lovely face in charming effect. Singular frills, outlining each panel of the skirt, stood away from the figure in crisp fashion, and formed a finish for the ceremonial tulle train which fell in soft folds over a train of satin. The long tulle sleeves were shirred in horizontal rows and finished at the hands with pleated tulle frills. The bridal veil of exquisite Venetian lace, which the bride brought from Europe, was applied upon layers of tulle which were caught at intervals with single orange blossoms centered with glistering pearls. The veil fell from a coronet of rose point lace, wired to stand erect, and worn well back from her forehead over her dark, wavy hair. The bride's bouquet was formed entirely of pale pink orchids.

Following the church rites, Dr. and

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The bond market on a burst of speed today, but prices developed a high degree of irregularity in the feverish trading.

The hearing of the gold clause case by the supreme court was the occasion of some nervousness among holders of secondary liens and most of these were subjected to some pressure on the theory that they would not benefit if the administration's monetary program is invalidated.

Those United States government securities and prime corporate loans which would be payable in gold if the high court should reverse the repudiation action of congress were pushed to strong.

The turnover of all bonds amounted to $26,015,000, par value, the largest aggregate for a single day since August 9 last. Of this total federal issues accounted for $15,440,000, the heaviest volume since August 22. The Associated Press average for 10 low-yield corporate bonds advanced 1/8 of a point to a new high at 108.41.

The utilities composite was up 1/8 of a point. The average for 20 rails rose 1/8 of a point while that for 10 industrials eased 1/8.

Company issues that advanced fractionally to round 2 points included Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s at 111.

Consolidated Gas 5s at 104, General Electric 5s at 103 1/2, American Telephone & Telegraph 4 1/2s at 101 1/2, Interboro Rapid Transit 4s at 102 1/2.

The majority of United States government issues firmed 6/32nds to 23-32nds of a point. The principal activity was in the 2 1/2s, 3 1/2s, 4 1/2s and 5 1/2s and the Treasury 3 1/2s of 1941-43. Small losses were suffered by the Treasury 4 1/2s 3 1/2s of 1941 and 1944-46, 3 1/2s of 1941-42, Federal Farm 1 1/2s and Home Owners Loan 3s and 4s.

In the foreign section the Brazilians improved, but Japanese and German obligations were a trifle heavy.

Now Tarzan and Rhonda knew the horrible truth. They were to be eaten by the half-gorilla in an effort to restore his youth and human form! With a bestial chuckle the creature bled through the doorway and closed the door. "It's the end," said Rhonda.

"We are still alive," Tarzan laughed, "and that is nine-tenths of safety." As Rhonda marveled at his cheerfulness, he became suddenly tense, alert. "Do you feel that draft?" he asked. The girl was quick to grasp this meaning. "I see no opening," she replied.

"Neither do I," he whispered, "but there must be some place we cannot see. And the only place we cannot see plainly is among the shadows on the wall, as though it had depth." Then, from above them, but at a distance, sounded a hollow chuckle, weird, uncanny!

"See anything?" Rhonda asked, her voice barely audible. "I think I see something," Tarzan replied; "there's a little patch that seems darker than the rest, as though it had depth." Then, from above them, but at a distance, sounded a hollow chuckle, weird, uncanny!
